The CTSC Advanced Certificate in Clinical & Translational Investigation is comprised of a core curriculum in clinical and translational research structured as lectures, interactive seminars, and workshops that can be completed within a one year period.

What is Translational Science? Translational science is the field that generates innovations that overcome longstanding challenges along the translational research pipeline. These include scientific, operational, financial, and administrative innovations that transform the way that research is done, making it faster, more efficient, and more impactful. Read more about the stages of translational science here.

Dissemination and Implementation science (D&I) is a crucial component of innovating and overcoming challenges in translational science. Accordingly, we are introducing D&I frameworks and methods into the TL1 Training Award review, placing D&I within the overarching discussions of the proposed research question, design, methodology, and potential impact(s) of the research findings. To learn more, please refer to the CTSC D&I Science Lecture Series.

To achieve this mission, the CTSC Education Program (CTEP) aims to educate and train a diverse and empowered group of clinical and translational scientists who are prepared to advance translational science discovery to practice, thereby improving health and enhancing the quality of life by reducing disability and death from disease. The WCM CTSC is committed to ensuring that the translational science workforce is broadly representative across racial, ethnic, sex, gender, age, socioeconomic, geographic and disability status (See NIH's Interest in Diversity Statement). We seek students who represent and embody the wide range of lived experiences and backgrounds of the US population.
